By Appointment.

The Mosque at Hebron over the Cave of Machpelah. Abraham's first possession in the Land of Promise was the field and cave which he bought to serve as a family sepulchre. The cave is still there, and the massive walls of the Mosque within which it lies are seen in the picture. The walls, built in the time of Herod the Great, are 39 feet high. The gable to the left belongs to the twelfth-century church built by the Crusaders over the graves of the Patriarchs.
